October love horoscope: Find out what the stars have in store for each sign?

The retrograde season will bring every zodiac sign into a turbulent period. Everything starts on October 3, when Venus begins its retrograde motion and slows the pace.

During this month, people may change their minds about their relationships. Prepare for old problems to resurface. But this happens to bring more clarity and information.

Keep in mind that everything that happens during Venus retrograde is part of the process, so a little faith in the universe can help you a lot this month.

On October 24, Mercury begins its retrograde in Scorpio, raising the intensity even further. Fortunately, the Sun moves through Libra for most of the month, a positive period when people are more willing to compromise to make things work.

Monthly love horoscope for October 2026:

Aries

Reviewing and reassessing your love life will be important themes this month, with Venus and Mercury beginning their retrogrades in Scorpio. This part of your chart is linked to intimacy, your partner's money, investments, transformation, and how you feel in and about your closest relationships. All of these issues will become clearer during this retrograde season.

Mars spends the entire month in your fifth house of love, together with expansive Jupiter, so you can expect to spend more time with your partner and/or friends. This is a good month to socialize, Aries. Mars moves through your fifth house every two years, while Jupiter does so only every 12 years, so this is a special opportunity to connect with others.

Jupiter brings luck wherever it goes, so this month you have many opportunities to benefit through romantic connections and friendships. If you are single, it's time to socialize more.

The Sun moves through Libra, which represents your seventh house of partnerships, until October 23. This is a pleasant and often romantic position. It's a sign that your partner plays an important role in your life this month, especially as the new moon on October 10 occurs in Libra and brings very romantic energy.

When the Sun enters Scorpio on October 23, it joins Mercury and Venus retrograde in your eighth house. With three planets moving through there this month, you will focus heavily on how your partner or the person you're interested in makes you feel and whether you can truly be yourself with them.

While Mercury is retrograde in your eighth house, from October 23 to November 13, old friends and ex-partners may come back or be on your mind more than usual.

Money is also a theme this month, especially if you share finances with someone, as the full moon occurs in Taurus on October 25. Don't let financial issues ruin a relationship that is generally going well! This moon is suitable for going deeper into your emotional life and finally resolving any unresolved issues that may arise in a relationship.

Taurus

Venus begins its retrograde in your seventh house of partnerships this month, in the intense sign of Scorpio. This means unresolved conflicts are very likely to surface. What happens depends on the state of the relationship and how committed you are to it.

Venus retrograde is a wildcard, Taurus. Some relationships may end. Others may reunite. If you are in a stable and relatively strong relationship, you shouldn't have many problems. Venus retrograde is a period for reassessing the relationship and correcting the issues that are not working.

On October 10, the new moon occurs in Libra, that is, in your twelfth house, which is linked to the subconscious and secrets. Don't be surprised if around this period you feel the need to spend some time alone and reflect.

Nevertheless, this is a suitable month to spend some time alone, as the Sun also moves through your twelfth house for most of the month. Libra is a pleasant sign and the one that rules your seventh house of marriage and partnerships, so love will be on your mind one way or another this month.

Mars moves through Leo, that is, in your fourth house of home and family. It is important to make sure your personal space is peaceful this month, because Mars can sometimes cause upheaval. You may invite people into your home. Leo is a bold and passionate sign for Mars, so this is another sign that you will be thinking deeply about matters of the heart during October.

The full moon occurs in your first house. When this happens, the focus is on you. This would be a good day to avoid controversial issues with your partner, as the moon squares Pluto, which can spark an argument or bring strong, long-held grudges to the surface.

Gemini

Most of this month should be quite pleasant, even though Venus and Mercury are retrograde, Gemini. Both planets are in Scorpio and move through your sixth house of work and well-being, so it is important to be aware of what is happening in these areas.

The Sun is in Libra until October 23 and illuminates your fifth house of love. This gives the new moon on October 10 great romantic potential. Sparks are expected to fly, and this could very well be the best day of the month for love.

When the Sun joins Mercury and Venus on October 23, things will become more intense both at work and in love. Three planets in Scorpio can make you feel almost obsessed with something and potentially suspicious of people. You won't settle for half-truths or superficial answers. This means it is time to be honest with yourself about the direction your love life is taking.

Venus in your sixth house may also be connected to someone you are interested in at work, directly or indirectly. If so, you will find out whether the feelings are mutual.

Mars is the other planet linked to love and passion, and in October it moves through Leo together with Jupiter, the planet of luck and benefits. This makes communication more important than usual this month. You can expect to feel very social. You and your partner may take many short trips around the city. If you are single, someone from your close circle could easily catch your attention.

This month's full moon occurs in Taurus on October 26. Love matters may be in the spotlight, but a full moon in the twelfth house can point to subconscious issues that may interfere with a current relationship. Don't let past experiences affect what is happening on that day.

With this full moon and Venus retrograde, the time may have come to leave the past where it belongs and reflect on whether a current romantic interest is worth pursuing.

Cancer

Your main focus this month is love and having a little more fun. On October 3, Venus begins its retrograde in your fifth house of love. Although this is not necessarily negative, you can expect to reflect on a current relationship and whether it is adding something good to your life.

Venus in this house brings a lot of potential. It is usually a pleasant period, when we spend more time having fun.

However, if you are in a difficult relationship, it can bring to the surface issues you disagree on, grudges, or areas that are not working. If your relationship is stable, you don't have much to worry about, Cancer.

In some cases, Venus retrograde can connect you with an old love and people from the past, although there is no guarantee that this will happen. If it does, there is no guarantee the relationship will work. This is a karmic transit, so whatever happens is part of what needs to be experienced.

Mercury is also in your fifth house throughout the month. It begins its retrograde on October 23 in Scorpio. During this period, misunderstandings and awkward situations in love can happen. Your feelings may become much more intense, in one direction or another.

Venus returns to Libra, that is, in your fourth house, on October 25. Libra is the sign where Venus feels at home. This softens some of the romantic intensity for the rest of the month and shifts the focus more toward understanding and a sense of harmony. Venus begins its direct motion in Libra and stays in this sign until early December, which is positive for love.

Mars, the planet of passion, joins Jupiter in your eleventh house this month. This part of your chart is connected to your social life, so you can expect to be very busy this month, as it seems you will spend a lot of time socializing and meeting others. Forming new connections can bring important results this month.

On October 26, the full moon in Taurus occurs in your eighth house, which rules your partner's money and transformation. This represents an important turning point in your love life, in one direction or another.

Leo

Venus and Mercury are retrograde in Scorpio, that is, in your fourth house, this month. On October 23, the Sun also enters Scorpio, creating a pile-up of planets in the most intense sign of the zodiac.

The fourth house represents roots and emotional security. These planets form a square, a tense aspect that can sometimes bring growth through pressure and difficulty. This will force you to face your true feelings, no matter how much you may want to avoid a situation that has gone through many difficulties.

When Venus is retrograde, ex-partners sometimes come back. But if this happens, don't assume they have returned to stay. The issues that separated you before will remain unless both of you have learned something different.

Things become much easier when Venus returns to Libra on October 25, and conversations become very important. The same applies to your thoughts. Around the new moon on October 10, which also occurs in Libra, you may receive important news related to love.

Mars and Jupiter move through your first house throughout the month. This can be your superpower, because it will significantly boost your self-confidence. Also, under this influence you will act with more wisdom. When you take a bold step, you won't feel as if you have to apologize to anyone.

Virgo

Venus and Mercury are both retrograde in Scorpio, in your third house, this month. Retrograde planets are reflective, and this house rules the mind and communication, which will be very important this month.

Virgo, you will seriously reassess the way you communicate and cooperate with partners. Ex-partners may suddenly write to you. You will seek the truth. Any lingering grudges, unspoken words, or unresolved questions will return and demand honest answers. However, Scorpio is a very suitable sign for you, which works in your favor.

Venus returns to Libra on October 23. The energy remains reflective, but it comes with more charm and diplomacy. Venus feels very good in Libra, which moves through your house of money and self-worth, two areas that are likely to improve.

The new moon also occurs in Libra, which can make the evening romantic and interesting. Things should flow naturally for you, because you will feel quite comfortable with this energy.

Mars and Jupiter move through Leo throughout the month, illuminating the house of the subconscious and everything that is hidden, including spirituality and deep grudges. This can sometimes ignite a secret crush. But it may also mean that you want to withdraw for a while, alone or with your partner, if you have one.

Don't be surprised if this month you experience a major psychological revelation, especially about understanding how and why you end up with the people you are with or have been with in the past. Fortunately, Jupiter is a kind of spiritual protector and brings many benefits, helping you finally clear away any hidden negativity.

The full moon on October 26 occurs in your ninth house, which is linked to travel, ideas, learning, legal matters, and how you see the world. If you are not careful, something could cause an argument or resentment toward your partner, or from their side, because of the square with Pluto. Be open to other people's ideas without judging them. You may need to remind someone that your opinions are your own.

Libra

Venus moves retrograde through your second house this month, which rules not only money but also your self-worth. Venus is joined by Mercury, which will also begin its retrograde, and then by the Sun on October 23.

With so many planets moving through this house, your self-worth is likely to become an issue that will surface or that you will have to work on during October. On October 25, Venus returns to your sign, where it will later begin its direct motion. This is a much easier position for Venus and is linked more to harmony and balance, without Scorpio's intensity.

The new moon in Libra on October 10 is your birthday moon and happens once a year. A new moon near your birthday often acts as a reset for the whole year. If you are interested in manifestation, now is the time!

Jupiter and Mars move through Leo throughout the month. For you, Leo represents long-term hopes and friendships. Romance can arise through shared goals and interests. This is a good month to socialize and spend time with others.

On October 26, the full moon in Taurus forms an opposition with Venus and a square with Pluto, which can make the atmosphere emotionally explosive. At the end of the month, you may need to face the question of whether you are giving away your power, money, and emotional vulnerabilities within a relationship.

Scorpio

Scorpio, the Sun enters your sign on October 23, when you will begin to feel comfortable with yourself again. Meanwhile, both Mercury and Venus retrograde are moving through your first house.

Venus begins its retrograde on October 3 and Mercury on October 24. This makes October a month for reassessing relationships and values. The direction you are heading and the person you are heading there with are likely to be very much on your mind.

Consider yourself at the center of the storm this month when it comes to love and facing yourself. You will be forced to strip away any illusions you may have, and ghosts from the past may suddenly surface.

You will become more aware of the ways you sabotage relationships or the reasons you choose certain people. This can easily lead to major psychological discoveries, especially around the new moon on October 10.

Around the full moon in Taurus on October 26, any issue that has been emerging in a relationship or with a person you are interested in will come to the surface. Keep in mind that control, secrets, or testing your partner is very likely not to end well.

Venus returns to Libra on October 25. This is often linked to a secret love or a romance you keep hidden. Otherwise, it is a period of deep reflection. The tone of your love life shifts toward the inner world rather than the outer one. Venus in this house is known for bringing back old loves or memories of major heartbreaks. The time may have come to close that door.

Sagittarius

This month, Mars and Jupiter move through your ninth house. Jupiter is the planet of expansion, while Mars is the planet of action. This combination can bring big steps when it comes to learning something new or meeting someone who lives far away, including someone in another country.

You are likely to want to spend more time with people who share your views and your way of seeing the world. The new moon on October 10 is a good time to socialize and meet others.

The retrograde season in October will have a profound impact on you, because Venus and Mercury move through your twelfth house, which is the house of reflection and the subconscious. Ex-partners or ghosts from the past may return so that you can finally face them. You may need to process a lot of old emotional baggage, especially after Libra season begins on October 23.

When Venus returns to Libra on October 25, it may bring back friends and lovers from the past. Even if they return, this doesn't guarantee that the relationship will be revived or that it should be.

Sagittarius, prepare for October's full moon to be a bit difficult. If you have given emotionally more than you should in a relationship, or if you don't feel the relationship is equal, these issues will surface. The best way to act is to show care through small gestures.

Capricorn

Between the retrogrades and the full moon, October brings significant changes to your love life, Capricorn.

Venus is retrograde in your eleventh house, together with Mercury. Then, on October 23, the Sun joins them. This can bring a major reassessment of your social life and the people you spend time with. If you or your partner have been pretending that a relationship is going well in public, while behind closed doors things are different, the mask will fall.

Some issues come, surprisingly, from the balance between work and personal life, or from the lack of it. Around the new moon on October 10, you may feel a greater pull between work and a relationship.

Venus returns to Libra on October 25, which may interfere with the time you spend with someone you are interested in. Think of ways you can include them in your professional life, especially when forming new connections. You may also be attracted to someone you work with, but whether that will work out is another matter.

Jupiter and Mars move through your eighth house throughout the month. Jupiter is the planet of benefits, while Mars is the planet of action. This is a dynamic duo, because Mars in this house increases desire and magnetism, while Jupiter can sometimes act almost like a guardian angel.

A relationship may move to a new level under this influence, or you may meet someone who seems to fit you perfectly. However, you cannot experience a full romantic relationship without being emotionally open. This is something you may have to face. It is also possible that you benefit financially from a partner.

The full moon on October 26 occurs in your fifth house of love. This is usually a wonderful position for love and romance. However, if there are unresolved issues, they will surface during this period. Deep emotions may emerge. In the worst case, this could bring an end to a difficult relationship.

Aquarius

Venus begins its retrograde in your sixth house this month, while Mercury does so starting on October 25. The sixth house is linked to service to others, so this is the best way to show love to your partner during October. This can also bring reflection on personal or emotional work in a relationship and whether it is divided equally.

Scorpio is one of the most intense signs of the zodiac, Aquarius. You may not feel comfortable with this heavy energy. Therefore, when Venus returns to Libra on October 25, this may come as a relief. Libra is a much more suitable sign for you. You may be especially interested in travel or even a romantic getaway around the new moon in Libra on October 10.

Jupiter, the planet of expansion, and Mars, the planet of action, move through your seventh house throughout the month. The seventh house is the part of the chart linked to marriage and committed relationships, putting your love life in the spotlight all month long.
